

Bay Area Chapter

“Survivorship: Life after Treatment”

Trish Murphy, RN, BSN

Trish Murphy is the nurse and program coordinator of the Survivorship Clinic at UCSF Benioff Children’s Hospital San Francisco, and has been in this position since May 2016. She started her career as a nurse at UCSF and worked as a floor nurse in the Peds BMT/ Hematology/ Oncology Unit for two years before moving on to become the nurse coordinator in the Peds BMT unit for 13 years. This experience of countless BMT consent conferences, long-term patient care, and seeing firsthand the increasing number of survivors taught her the importance of late effects and educating patients. She is passionate about increasing awareness of the importance of long-term follow-up among patients, families, providers, and insurance companies. Every patient who survives treatment should be seen in a Late Effects or Survivorship clinic post-treatment.
